Continuation:

Applicants request for the interview was intended to discuss the Amendment to the claims in a non-official preliminary amendment faxed on June 9, 2004. Examiner indicated that the scope of the claims had been broadened by the preliminary Amendment. While Applicants argued that the invention is patentable over the prior art of records, Examiner noted that the invention as claimed may still be rejected based on the claimed subject matter and the most reasonable interpretation of the claim limitations as presented.
